

平成18年度 熊本リハビリテーション学院一般前期入学試験問題
英語I(平成17年12月17日)

第1問 つぎの英文を読んで、[問1]～[問4]に答えなさい。

Urgent action must be taken to cut the number of obese* children in the UK, doctors have warned.

Adverts* for junk food should be scrapped, and there should be clear rules about what foods can be served in school meals, they said.

Doctors said that (A) quick action was taken, kids would suffer bone problems and serious conditions like diabetes* as so many are overweight. Around one million kids in the UK are obese.

The report come from a doctor's group called the British Medical Association. Healthy foods should only be allowed to advertise, and pre-packed food should have (イ) information on them to say exactly how much fat they contain, the group said.

One doctor, Vivienne Nathanson, said it was crazy that children were being told to eat less and do (□) exercise, but they in fact “go into school and are sold fatty food and doughnuts and do less than two hours exercise a week.”

The government has made changes on school meals this year to help children eat (八). Jamie Olivier, the director of School Dinners Programme, said: “We are working across Government to help children lead (ニ) lives.”

注) obese* 肥満の adverts* 広告 diabetes* 糖尿病
